Explain what the invention does.

You must include in your answer if your invention happened to solve a problem or by accident. Remember to explain WHY

Type of Invention and Why:

This one is probably the most confusing... A new invention will most likely be a Created and Demand type of an invention. The invention was created to solve a problem then there became a demand for the invention. If your invention improved on an existing product, then it would be considered a Demand and Created type of an invention. There was a demand to improve upon an existing product, so the invention was created. Remember your answer is worth 40 pts.
